Courses September 2nd

DATE OF MEETING: 10 p.m.
The Mississippi Coast Power Company will conduct a meeting on the 10th of September at 10 p.m. in the main hall of the Mississippi Coast Power Company building at 1000
Main Street, Biloxi, Miss.
The meeting will be held in the main hall of the building at 10 p.m. on the 10th of

is the best method of seeding because it allows the seed to and it allows the seed to be sown at a uniform depth.

FERTILIZATION: Fertilize the land before sowing. Use plenty of nitrogen. Top dress with nitrogen as needed to grow more grass.

GROWTH PERIOD: These grasses should continue growing nearly all year in favorable seasons.
The growth will be somewhat slow the first year.

SEED PRODUCTION: The seed shaver easily when ripe. Yields have varied from 100 pounds to 200 per acre. Best yields have been from close, low, cultivated

Greener Pastures

Open Letter To Mississippians

Editorial and political concern appears in print, periodically, relative to Mississippi's declining population and the loss of so many of her sons and daughters who leave the state seeking greener pastures.

Mississippi has consistently led all the states in her high per capita birth rate and low per capita death rate. She is a prolific mother of sons and daughters and has contributed them generously to her sister states.

Until recently, Mississippi's economy had its roots in two major crops — timber and cotton. Most of her virgin timber was manufactured into lumber, and with the invasion of the Mexican boll weevil and the competition of synthetics and other fibers, King Cotton lost much of his empire.

Though Mississippi still ranks high in cotton, the diversification of her crops, the mechanization of her farms, year-round pastures and substantial strides in poultry and livestock production have resulted in a balanced agricultural economy.

An expanding resort business has brought in new money and provided new markets.
Reforestation brings new life to a once depleted timberland. Oil and gas fields multiply in South Mississippi. Our ports are developing. There is promise of a prosperity in the future that will exceed this area's palmiest past.

During the past year new industrial construction and expansion in the area served by this company exceeded $50,000,000, and for the state as a whole the total reached $85,959,000.

But of all Mississippi's resources, her young men and young women are her most priceless assets. Their hands, minds and hearts are essential to the creation of a more vigorous economy. They are the architects of the state's future.

When they leave Mississippi they take away their talents, their education and training, their production potential, their enthusiasm and their faith. If we are to retain their skills, their strength and devotion, we must first instill in them the conviction that opportunity lies here at home, and then make room for them in a pioneering economy.

These are exciting times in Mississippi as history repeats itself. Mississippi which ranked fifth among all the states in per capita wealth one hundred years ago, will again come richly into her own. To those of the rising generation, dedicated to high purpose and seeking to profitably invest their lives in a growing economy, the possibilities are ever greener in Mississippi.

OUTLOOK IN HOG PRODUCTION

Mississippi's first Master Hog Show, scheduled to be held at the State Fair Grounds in Jackson this year, will mark the beginning of a new era in hog production in the state. At present, Mississippi is not producing one half of the amount of pork and pork products consumed in the state. There is a good market for our farm hogs for well-bred, properly finished hogs.

CATTLE FEEDING AND REPRODUCTION

Mississippi's potential in cattle production is vast. We lead all the states in the production of cattle. However, we are not producing enough of the high quality cattle that the market demands.
We must improve our breeding
stock and our feeding methods.
We must produce more of the high quality cattle that the market demands.

SWINE FEEDING AND REPRODUCTION

Mississippi's potential in swine
production is vast. We lead all
the states in the production of swine. However, we are not producing enough of the high quality swine that the market demands.
We must improve our breeding
stock and our feeding methods.

ket demands.

COOKOUT SUGGESTIONS

Use only live coals and allow no flames. If heat becomes too high, spread the coals thinly, if too low, push them together.

When cooking large roasts or other large pieces of meat keep reserves hot coals by adding a little extra charcoal around the edge.

Keep chickens, turkey and meat that takes more than an hour to cook, at least 10 inches from the coals.

Steaks, hamburgers and other fast-cooking meats may be grilled four inches from the coals.

JUMBO SANDWICHES.
If your outing calls for sandwiches rather than food grilled on the spot, why not try jumbos for a change.

Since a long loaf of French bread lengthwise, spread mayonnaise, butter or margarine, or a savory sauce. Then arrange slices of meat and cheese, and other extras such as lettuce, onion, pickle, or olives.
Now cut finished sandwich crosswise into servings.

Another jumbo is the triple decker club sandwich. Use white and whole wheat bread. On the first layer use turkey and corned beef. Second layer, tomatoes, lettuce and sweet onion. Third layer, sharp cheddar cheese and mustard.

OPEN FACE SANDWICHES.
If your sandwich ideas aren't quite this big, maybe an open-face sandwich will be good and a little different.

How about:
Baked Boston Trout — baked beans, bacon, string and grated cheese on dark rye.
Hawaiian Toast — pineapple slices, honey, cream and cheese slices on rye, frosted.

GOOD SANDWICH SECRETS.
Freshness is the secret to good sandwiches.
For sandwiches to be eaten later, give lots of attention to making and packing to keep their fresh appeal.

Sandwiches can be wrapped and frozen for one or two later.
Allow three hours for thawing.
Leave on the lettuce or mayonnais.

Butter both sides of sandwich to keep filling from soaking into bread. For extra flavor, cream the butter spread with a little mustard, deviled ham, horseradish, capers or favorite cheese.

37 Solons Not Running, Others May Lose

BY ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON, July 22.—No one knows what happened in the fall elections, a lot of new faces will be seen around Congress.

Already 3 senators and 31 representatives have said they have had it. And more may drop out voluntarily—or be voted out in the remaining 22 state primaries.

Washington, Friday.—The record batch of congressmen who have said they have had it, and are dropping out voluntarily—or being voted out in the remaining 22 state primaries.

ervation Stamp
Go On Sale

The stamps to salute the nation's forests and public organizations which have contributed so much to progress in forest conservation in this country. The forest conservation stamp shows a forest scene of two pine trees, a low swamp, healthy reproduction, wildlife on a lakeshore bordered by hardwoods, and a background of forest-protected watersheds. The stamp features the mature growth of forest conservation, including new growth of young trees and harvesting of mature timber, under scientific forest management, home and shelter for wildlife and birds, and protected watersheds.

The stamp was announced. Postmaster General Summerfield on July 26 at the 83rd Annual Convention of the American Forestry Association. The first day of issue will be October 27, Tucson, Arizona. Stamps will be sale in our locality beginning approximately the same date.

The above announcement was made jointly by Arac, Forests Marion Barker of Miss. Forest Commission and local Postmaster Andy J. Becker, of Bay St. Louis, Miss.

Proof that Mississippians with thrift-conscious and defensible is indicated in the fact that United States Savings Bonds sales in our state totalled $3,625,670 during the first six months of 1938. This substantial purchase reflects a gain of two percent over the same period in 1937. Officials attribute the increase, at least partly, to the immediate availability of more couples with the guaranteed interest rate.

...and exciting part of the community. It is an all-purpose, all-age information center.

Throughout Mississippi each day hundreds of people go to their libraries seeking new inspiration and knowledge. They find it in current books, technical data which will give them concrete facts to increase the volume of business. A professional man with little time for reading finds summaries of current books and pertinent articles. . . a grandfather with leisure time after retirement browses through volumes on retirement opportunities and leisure time hobbies. . . a pre-school child chooses a picture book, a student a story place. . . a gardening enthusiast takes reading matter on fertilization and pruning of shrubbery. . . a mother asks for books on child guidance. . . a student seeks facts for a term paper or a speech.

Not only individuals, clubs and service groups are finding the libraries an invaluable asset in community betterment. Research by the libraries furnishes background information for a chamber of commerce meeting. Pictures or, in some cases, phonograph records, from the library supply the needed aids for a woman's club discussion group. Church groups plan the yearly program around ideas found in the library.

Information, however, is just one phase of the library's storehouse. Books bring fun to the community. They are a source of entertainment the library offers countless volumes on travel, drama, sports and mystery, adventure, biography and romance.

Often the library has meeting rooms and study areas. Sometimes it sponsors discussion groups and book clubs.

Along with the school, the library spearheads educational op-

Somewhere in this Congressional District there is a little boy with freckles and short pants who dreams today that in one of the tomorrows to come he will be Congressman.

Here Is The Heartwarming Story Of A Boy Who had That Dream And Prepared Himself....

The Boyce Holleman Story....

as written by veteran news reporter Jack Hancock shortly before his death

UNDER THE DING-DONG DOMES by Jack Hancock, Jackson Daily News, March 24, 1950

Sometimes while I'm sitting around here feeling sorry for myself because I'm a shut-in and can't get out like I want, I find it's a good idea to think about other people I know who have had it tougher than I have and come on through ready to fight the world. On such occasions, I invariably think of Representative Boyce Holleman of Wiggins, who is probably right this minute doing some connivory at the House, trying to get a road program through the legislature. I am sure there were many times after Boyce was shot down in flames by Jap pilots during the war, that he must have wondered whether he'd ever see Mississippi again, but you can't keep a guy like that down and he fought things through to get back to his home town, get elected to the Legislature and get into law practice. He isn't at all finicky about admitting that the face he boasts—while a fair facsimile of the one he used to own—isn't at all his own, but the result of plastic surgery; and that a lot of the rest of his body is "substitute"—one-third of his body was burned away when his ship was burned with him in it.

To get back to the beginning, Boyce was born in Stone County, attended schools there and after a year at Perkinson (where he washed dishes three times a day to work his way through) went to Ole Miss for the 1941-42 session. There he varied it a bit by working in the Student Grill and cleaning ROTC rifles every week to meet expenses. In July of 1942 he joined the Navy as Seaman 2/c to take flight training; then went to aviation cadet and, finally got his wings and commission as a carrier torpedo bomber. He later joined a squadron on the Pacific Coast, aboard the small carrier, Gambler Bay. That's when things began getting hot.

Remember Saipan? Funny how short our memories are; but lots of us even back here remember that invasion. Boyce will never forget it. On June 17, 1944, (D day plus 2 at Saipan) while supporting Marine ground troops, he was shot down in flames by Jap anti-aircraft fire. He was making his second six-hour "top" of the day; the boys had it rough about then. After floating around in the water for three hours, he was finally picked up by an armored Navy boat within 150 yards of Jap positions. As usual the Japs used him for target practice for most of those three hours; they'd swing on past him, but each time American planes chased them off. The radio man and gunner on his TBF bailed out when the ship was hit and neither was ever heard from again.

More dead than alive, Boyce was picked up by the armored Navy ship and transferred to the USS Solace, a hospital ship, and transferred to a hospital at Guadalcanal. That's when the rough seige really started. After two months, he was transferred to Mare Island Naval Hospital, when the doctors decided that in spite of his serious injuries he was going to live anyway. One-third of the total body area suffered second degree burns. After 36 plastic surgery operations, they figured they had Boyce where he'd stay put together again—but meantime they'd given him over 500 (and that's five hundred) pints of blood plasma, in addition to seven whole blood transfusions. You can see why he became known around the west coast as "the walking blood bank." But the point is, he was walking.

For a year, he recuperated. By August, 1945, he decided all his patches would hold and reported to Corpus Christi, Texas, arriving there on VJ day. He stayed on army, serving as instructor until May 1, 1946, and finally retired the following December. When he was advanced to rank of Lieutenant Commander because of battle commendation on Iwo Jima, he was getting to be an old man now, ripe old age of 221. That made him, incidentally, the youngest lieutenant commander in the Navy, just as, at 21, he had been the youngest Navy lieutenant.

I know this is running a bit long, but there's a bit of romance in this yarn also. Here that I know you wouldn't want to miss. A sister of one of the fellow pilots came to town one day and brought along a girl friend, and after one look at the girl friend, Cupid did what the Jap couldn't. Boyce surrendered then and there but couldn't convince the girl that was—and he says they wasted a whole year before they were married. Anyway, he got back to Ole Miss to finish his studies, got his law degree and decided (in 1947) to run for the Legislature, getting 70 per cent of the votes to beat two opponents in the first primary, then went back to Ole Miss to finish law school. . . .

AND HERE IS THE REST OF THE STORY THAT JACK COULD WRITE TODAY . . .

AS A LEGISLATOR 1948 - 1953

He served as chairman of the Forestry Committee, and as a member of the Ways and Means Committee, Fishing, Commerce and Shipping, Judiciary, Banks and Banking, Aeronautics and Aviation.

Here are a few of the great Legislative achievements which he co-authored and helped to pass:

- Mississippi's Pay-As-You-Go Road Program providing blacktop roads for rural people.
- Four-year medical college.
- Increased old-age pensions.
- Increased appropriations for mental hospitals.
- A strong school program.
- County public libraries and bookmobiles.
- Veterans' Affairs Commission.
- Strong Forestry Program.

"Ray Boyce Holloman, of Stone County is one of the ablest speakers in the lower chamber and a splendid parliamentarian. He is also a clear thinker and has the vigor to make a good official in the lower chamber."

THE BOCYE HOLLEMAN FAMILY

AS DISTRICT ATTORNEY 1953-1598

In 5½ years as District Attorney, holding the same office once held by Pat Harrison and the incumbent Congressman, Holloman has compiled an outstanding record in the Courtrooms of the 2nd Judicial District. Along with the thousands of jurors who came to occupy the seats in the jury boxes across his District, Holloman has brought dignity and justice to the Courtrooms of his District. His people expressed their appreciation in the 1955 general election when he was returned to office for a full 4-year term over 25,000 votes.

" Our local jury system and our system of law had lost a great deal of respect in recent years because of the spectacle of trial, fairly tried and ably prosecuted, but in the face of what seemed to reason men mountains of evidence as to guilt, no conviction resulted or ever seemed possible to get.

Thanks to Bayce Holloman, an unusually able and highly motivated presenter, the situation is to be remedied.

This country is indeed fortunate in possessing District Attorney of the character and competence of the undersigned.

MISS INEZ MORAN

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester S. Moran, Kiln, announce the engagement of their daughter, Inez, to Tracy Smith, son of Mrs. Inez Rose 718 Ruth Avenue, Gulfport.

The wedding will be solemnized on Sept. 6 in St. John's Catholic Church in Gulfport.

Miss Moran is a graduate of Kiln High School in the fall of 1934 and later attended Patuxent Junior College for one year. She is employed at Keesler as a telephone operator.

Mr. Smith is a member of the U. S. Navy and is presently stationed at Patuxent, Md.

A total of 71% or 52,515,000 seedlings were planted on private lands in the State, Parker said, including individuals, clubs, associations and private schools. The remainder were planted on state, county and other public lands and on forest industry lands.

Parker said the 3 Commission nurseries this year will produce around 100 million seedlings which will be available for distribution beginning this fall. Anyone desiring seedlings should place his order at the earliest possible time with the Area Forester. Each landowner is entitled to 1,000 seedlings free. After that number, they may be purchased for $450 per thousand for all species except red cedar and Arizona cypress which sell for $600 per thousand. All orders of 50,000 or more may be picked up at the nursery when indicated on the application.

Species available this year are slash, loblolly, longleaf and shortleaf pines, Arizona cypress, green ash, black locust, cottonwood and

NEW GREENVILLE ARMORY IS SET

Work is expected to begin at about mid-October on Greenville's new $138,000 National Guard armory. It will be located on the present site. The present two-story building will be retained, and a new one-story unit of the same size will be demolished and replaced by the new construction.

Under the program, the federal government puts up $68,000, the state $25,000 and the Washington County $12,500 for equipment. The City of Greenville will effect a title transfer of the building to the state.
